EXPECT 70,000 AUGUST 15, TIME FOR THE NATIONAL

Dairymen From All Parts of Country Expected to Be at Dairy Show.

(By Associated Press)

Milwaukee, Wis.—When Milwaukee opens its doors to welcome the National Dairy Show, Sept. 27 to Oct. 4, dairymen from all parts of the country will assemble to learn more of their industry and to see new developments in dairy farm and factory practice. Its manager

Dairy farmers, cheese and butter makers, meatmen, bankers, manufacturers, educators and students are included among those who are expected to take part in the show. Approximately 70,000 visitors are expected, according to W. E. Slatin, secretary and general manager of the National Dairy Association.

Wisconsin, long recognized as a source of milk and leading dairy state in the nation, will come under the scrutiny of dairy leaders everywhere. A delegation of 200 bankers and farmers from Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma have promised to come for the purpose of buying foundation stock from Badger dairymen. Similar groups are coming from other dairy centers, he adds.

Boost for State.

Educational and extension forces in Wisconsin, under the direction of John D. Jones, Jr., commissioner of agriculture, are bending their efforts to give the state maximum representation at the event.

Twenty-five breed association pecanies, cattle, cow breeders and others are being lined up, to bring county delegations.

What promises to be the most complete display of dairy products, dairy cattle and dairy making machinery ever staged will be thrown open to the world at the coming dairy show. With 50,000 square feet of floor space, the Milwaukee auditorium will house the dairy machinery separately, while the state fair grounds are reserved for the exhibits of cattle and milk products.

Nationally-known leaders have been invited to come to Milwaukee to tell the dairymen's conference. Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, Dr. C. W. Larrance, chief of the dairy division, United States Department of Agriculture; Haley Fiske, and Frank O. Lowden, former governor of Illinois, and now president of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America are scheduled. Roy Keyton, addressed, John E. Blaine, secretary of Wisconsin, and J. G. A. Preus, governor of Minnesota, also are slated to speak.

The value of cow testing association work in increasing dairy efficiency will be stressed. A rate of 200 grade dairy cows, with yearly buttermilk records of 350 pounds or more, is the record set by the dairy testing contests.

Dairy competition, cow judging contests by farmers representing county beef associations, will make a new departure in dairy circles.

Silver Black Fox Farm Boasts Costly Denizens

Six scampers, sharp nosed, keen-eyed bits of animal life having clear black fur, not only about the size of hair and worth $5,000.

Thirty pairs of the mature animals are worth $75,000.

The first silver fox ranch in Rock county has been established by G. H. Turner and C. H. Betts, along Rock river north of Janesville. There are now 100 pairs of these valuable animals on the farm and immediate preparations being made to increase 30 pairs and, eventually, to ranch 100 pairs.

Hove Registered Sheep.

Silver fox farming has attracted wide attention, chiefly because of the chance for immense profits derived from the sale of pelts and breeding stock. The Rock county farm is under the care of Harry Embree, having 12 years' experience in fox farming in Canada, who, consequently, has lost the novelty of handling animals worth $1,000 or more apiece.

Domestication of fur bearing animals is the future prospect of increasing the demand for fur. Thoughtless conservationists have depicted the natural fur supply until trapping can be followed with little degree of success only in the most remote places.

Even in the wilderness, fox, beaver, otter, mink and even mink-like which appears at Hudson would be definitely flushed. As a result, fur farming is bound to replace the wilds to a marked degree as a source of pelts.

Gem of All Fur.

The silver fox furnishes the gem of all fur.

It is true because of the relative scarcity, the market demand and for the reason the silver-black fox can not be successfully imitated. This factor, when in prime condition, the winter or early spring months, has a clear, black, underfur with long, dark hairs, black at the tips, but a white or silver band. The darker individuals who can make muskrat look like raccoon and rabbit-like seal, have not been able to devise means of imitating these silver banded guard hairs and there are no successful "fakes."

Better than two acres of soy beans are being raised by young Hess and the stand is as good as any in Rock county. The beans will be used as hay.

Carefully Guarded.

The fox are kept in long wire pens with dens or kennels with a heavy wire cage to prevent them from digging out of the pen surrounded by a high wire barrier. Every precaution is taken to prevent the escape of these thousand dollar beauties. The wires are need to be either with only one broken or two, the runways are long and wide enough for plenty of exercise and true to natural instincts, the fox sleep and hide away during the day to emerge during the evening and night to run and play, much in the manner of young dogs.

The fox is closer to the cat family than the squirrel, but even the domesticated squirrel has the alertness and quickness of the fox in snapping, running and darting.

History of Fox.

Fox farming has developed from frenzied financing to an extensively organized industry. Before fox ranching started, silver foxes were occasionally caught by trappers in the far north and the pelts shipped to the great fur market in London brought exceptionally high prices, more than any other fur, including the mink.

Scarcity of the fur and possibility of their extermination, caused Charles Dalton, a trapping and fur trader on Prince Edward Island to experiment with the breeding of red foxes with the thought he might obtain more fur or silvers through what he termed a "throwback."

Later he heard of two pairs of the silvers in captivity and upon purchasing these animals abandoned his breeding of red foxes. He built a special farm and with two pair as a foundation, studied the breeding with several partners, who kept the results secret.

In the course of a few years, stories concerning the wealth to be obtained from raising silver foxes took out and, as a result, of these experiments, the fox farming boom started and has developed in nearly all of the Canadian provinces and many northern states in America.

The first consignment of 25 pairs to London from the Prince Edward ranch brought $21,175, the top price for choice pelts being $2,500 each.

Serious business thinking brought the fur farming business out of the wild speculations era and excessive prices until many farms have been started. It is now an exceedingly rare occurrence for a fox silver fox to be trapped in the wild.

DAVIS SOUNDS WAR CRY FOR CAMPAIGN AT NOTIFICATION

To maintain the means of adequate national defense until peace is permitted to take the place of force."

In opposition to the implication, either by implication or by other means, of the rights of labor to organize and to bargain collectively for an adequate wage earned under healthful conditions."

The protection of women and children from human greed and unequal laws.

Prevention of child labor and suppression of the illicit traffic in and destroying drugs.

Conservation of all of the natural resources of the country.

"Grateful care" to the veterans of our wars, especially to those who were stricken and wounded in the country's service and whose confidence has been so cruelly and corruptly Enter Campaign Free.

Finally, Mr. Davis said he entered the campaign free from pledges or promise to any man or group to hold it so to the end." Also he declared that when it became necessary to raise funds for the conduct of the campaign they would be contributed "with this understanding and this only: that neither the democratic nor the republican leader have any favors for sale."

Expressing in general terms his approval of the proposals contained in the platform adopted by the convention which nominated him, the candidate said he could now be expected at this moment to discuss them in detail or to outline the program in which they are to be carried into effect.

"There will be time enough for that," he said.

Much of his address was given over to a measured attack upon the record of the republican party during the past four years. Recounting what he termed "the multiplied scandals of these melancholy years," Mr. Davis called the executive branch of government "shirking, hushing, covering up" and "obstruction."

He charged that an investigation showed the children to be in excellent health, he said. Another was that of a woman who telephoned the name and address of a supposed violator of the health regulations.

Mr. Davis claimed he had been deceived by the progressive forces in Wisconsin.

Business interests have slowly but surely taken charge of practically every form of control, he said.

Through their aspirations modeled after the American Federation of Labor, they have molded powerful organizations and are spending millions of dollars in return for the 1913 basis.

Big business controls the banks, the sub industries and have secured either direct or indirect control of the newspapers," he said.

The late President Harding was painted as a fool of Wall street by Mr. Smith, who vividly ridiculed the slogan "back to normalcy."

Flaws Major Parties

He explained what "back to normalcy" had done to labor, alleging that the republicans passed through court injunctions and violations of the constitution, had always taken the side of capital.

He cited the famous Wilkinson injunction as an example.

The late President Harding was painted as a fool of Wall street by Mr. Smith, who vividly ridiculed the slogan "back to normalcy."

The board took a progressive step in electing Supt. Holt an officer of the board of education, effective at the expiration of the term of Miss Loretta Handke, who leaves Sept. 12.

Through their aspirations modeled after the American Federation of Labor, they have molded powerful organizations and are spending millions of dollars in return for the 1913 basis.

Big business controls the banks, the sub industries and have secured either direct or indirect control of the newspapers," he said.

The move was made on the suggestion of Mr. Holt, who said that the same has been done in many cities. He said it might be wise to have the responsibility for all the duties of the clerk thrown on him. He said that those who would have under him those who would do the work it would at the same time have a tendency to make himself sufficiently informed with details that he would be able to give the board any information they desired.

New Accounting System

A new accounting system, standardizing the several states, was ordered last week after Mr. Holt explained that the state department has given a year's warning in advance that it will be standardized throughout the state so that the city superintendent and be in turn to the state superintendent and be in turn to the state superintendent of public instruction.

Supt. Holt, attacking the republican and democratic parties, Mr. Smith alleged that the republican party, through court injunctions and violations of the constitution, had always taken the side of capital.

He cited the famous Wilkinson injunction as an example of this practice.

The speaker's right to collective bargaining was upheld, the speaker declaring that the state should guarantee some right regardless of working conditions, and so forth.

He also attacked the so called "open shop" plan terming it "unfair and unjust."

Supt. Holt, attacking the republican and democratic parties, Mr. Smith said that the American Federation of Labor has not attempted to interfere with the annual effort to make a budget.

It was not in accord with the standardization system. Supplies for a year will cost $10, Mr. Holt said.

The "Faint Protests"

Supt. Holt was authorized to prepare and have printed a prospectus of the courses of study in the junior and senior high school, for distribution into every home in the city.

It was estimated that the cost would be about $2000 enough to last two years.

Letters of appreciation will be written to the Kiwanis club and the Ladies of the G. A. R. by Mrs. Holmes, as a result of action taken by the board. Mrs. Holmes said the Kiwanis club was greatly indebted to the Kiwanis club for the playgrounds upon which it depended, and that the Ladies of the G. A. R. presented a beautiful flag to the Jefferson school and a picture of St. Gaudens' statue of Lincoln at the high school.

The board bid 7:30 as the time for all board meetings in the future.

A total of $98,000 will be reported in the treasury. Commissioners of the treasury, Francis Grant and Mrs. Fred Clegg, were absent.

MERCURY DROPS TO 60 IN COOL WAVE

Freakish August Weather Is Experienced — Mead Predicts Warm Autumn.

Visions of the cold man, contempt for the hot man, and the scurrying around to bring gas and electric heaters from their hiding places attended Mr. and Mrs. Housewife, et al., Monday night and Tuesday morning. Just one week after the thermometer was hitting 94 degrees in the shade, Tuesday, it was consoling at 60, the coldest in many weeks of queer weather.

The temperature went up to 73 by noon Tuesday, with skies overcast. A rain, which began at 12:30 p.m., may settle the elements and bring the mercury back to normal.

Rock River is dropping slowly, going down nearly two inches to stand at 28 inches above the mark. This is 20 inches higher than normal.

Dry Spell Coming

L. C. Meads, the Janesville weather prophet, says there is no temporary dry spell coming, but plenty of rain will come about the middle of September. The moon has been killed in a straight line this summer, so we are centering on the equator each new and each full one, which had an effect on weather conditions.

There will be a total eclipse of the sun on Sept. 10, he declares, and an eclipse of the sun will be on Aug. 30. So it will be close to the middle of September before we get by all the disturbances. With dry weather indicated, the latter half of September we will have a favorable equinox for a dry, warm pleasant autumn. There are no more eclipses of the sun or moon for 1924 and the moon will gradually pass farther to the north so that each successive moon will continue to set more flat.

What has become of the crickets and the insects that usually keep us awake during the August nights? I have never heard them sing yet and they are never usually later than the middle of July.

"While I see some weather prophets are predicting frost by the 16th of September, cloudy weather may prevail even if there is hard frost in the northwestern states. Frost might hold off until very late in the autumn."

"Another severe storm is likely about the 15th, 16th and possibly the 17th."

Picnic and Dance Community Affair

A picnic dance will be the price charged at the second public dance Wednesday in the pavilion at Riverside park under the auspices of the municipal golf club. This price was so successful at the first dance when 250 tickets were sold, that it was decided to continue it.

The club has gone to extra efforts to provide fine music again, it was announced by George Gilman, chairman.

The event will be a repetition of the last one — picnic in the afternoon and Southern dancing in the evening.

Local people are urged to bring their families, a sonnet by the high school band at the supper hour and the dance starting at 8 p.m. There are swings, slides, a sand box and teeter totters for the children.

The high school band will give an hour concert. A special program is being prepared by Ralph C. Jack, bandmaster. Some amateur bands have been lined up to take the chairs from the high school. There will be about 100 pieces in the band, Arthur Wheeler, playground director, will assist in transporting the members.

Decorations for the hall will be black and orange with shaded lights. Assisting Mr. Gilman are Ambrose J. Olson and Frank Trevorall.

STATE JUVENILE CONFERENCE, PLAN

Problems of Delinquency to Be Discussed at Session in November.

(By Associated Press)

Madison — A state juvenile conference, to discuss problems of delinquency in Wisconsin and methods for remedying present conditions, will be held here in November at the call of the state board of control, state officials said today.

The conference will include representatives of welfare associations, and agencies dealing with juvenile problems. It will be similar in nature to the conference on blind problems held here last week.

Miss Elizabeth Yerxa, newly appointed juvenile director of the state board of control, will be one of the leaders of the conference. Yerxa attended the international conference at Toronto, Canada, recently, and will bring to the state conference plans for bettering juvenile conditions.

Remedial methods for present juvenile and delinquent problems, preventive methods and legislative needs will be discussed at the state gathering.

International Rotary Delegate Tells of Meeting

Feelings inspired by attendance at a Rotary convention at which were present more than 9,000 representatives of clubs throughout America, and expressed in the "Pledge of Allegiance" recited in the Grand hotel Tuesday morning, Mr. Grant was the local club's delegate to the convention at Toronto, Canada.

Mr. Grant, in an interesting talk, told what was accomplished, described the wonderful programs of entertainment and the spirit of cooperation from the standards of distinction.

"In the first place you find that you are proud to be a Rotarian and also that there is a high standard of scholarship among them as a whole," Mr. Grant said. "The first work of Rotary club should be to make Rotarians of its members. It was felt that the Rotarians should take no action on civic affairs, but should indicate that they are members of the community.

Mr. Grant declared that the Canadians are proud of their friendly relations with the United States and hope that it will continue. He described the wonderful pageant portraying the history and particularly the wars of America, and said that one part that showed Canada's feeling toward the United States was a picture, "three thousand miles of border, without any armed guard."

Mr. Grant said that the Canadian is a good Rotarian and hope that it will continue. Mr. Davis' Acceptance

John W. Davis made the same sort of speech which has been made by democrats in accepting the nomination of the presidency for the last forty years. First he attacks the republican party for its tariff measure and then charges that it is corrupt. There is nothing new in this since the democratic party has been a free trade party from the beginning. Mr. Davis is for the consumer and against the producer in a tariff. The republican party is for both. The party divergence is right here. In the course of reasoning of the Davis mind, which is that of others in whose footsteps he follows, a deluge of cheap goods made in Europe provides the consumer with a cheap buying market. And the Davis mind, still following the old worn path of the fathers of democracy, fails to say how, with Europe paying her debts in cheap goods on the American markets, we are going to have money enough to buy them since no one would work except to act as stevedores for foreign imports. Mr. Davis' contribution to the tariff shows haste and some indifference.

But that is not the issue. He cannot get away from the League of Nations. To him this is a living, sacred thing. "We do not and we cannot accept the dictum unauthorized by any expression of popular will that the League of Nations is a closed incident so far as we are concerned." To Mr. Davis it is not closed, nor dead, and he says so. He wants to get in the League and every other avenue shall be used to mix in the troubles of Europe. He speaks as the internationalist—who has an idea that the world waits for America to settle its old racial and personal quarrels.

Mr. Baker, at the New York convention, was pleading for a plank which would not repudiate Woodrow Wilson. The convention refused to accept it. The candidate makes Mr. Baker's plank in support of the League as good as though written there. Davis is for the World Court and here differs with the Coolidge attitude in that Mr. Davis will take the League court as it stands, accepting the foreign made article without reservation.

This acceptance of the League, in spite of the democratic platform and his attitude against the Ku Klux Klan, though he is like the democratic platform in not naming it, are the two outstanding features of the acceptance. On the Eighteenth amendment he does not quibble. What he says will make the flesh of democrats who supported Al Smith, crawl. Those liberal souls like George Brennan, will see red when they read that Mr. Davis believes in the constitution with the 18th amendment. Yet Mr. Davis is no more to the point here than Calvin Coolidge was to the governors last fall.

THE CRUISE OF THE BEAR

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Washington.—The people of the Arctic have one grand event to look forward to every year, besides the coming of spring. It is the arrival of the United States Coast Guard cutter, the Bear, during the early summer, bringing mail and supplies and other forms of relief.

This year, the event did not materialize, as the Bear got caught in an ice pack, was severely damaged and had to be hauled up for extensive repairs. There are now rumors to the effect that this veteran vessel will never attempt an Arctic cruise again—that it never should. In its unfeasted condition, however attempted one this season. A new vessel, specially constructed, probably will take its place. A bill containing an appropriation of $25,000 for the construction of such a cutter has been introduced in congress.

In commenting on the need for a new cutter, Admiral P. C. Billard, commandant of the Coast Guard, said: "I believe the Bear has rendered more varied service to humanity in her history than any other ship of any government in the world. The vessel is 50 years old. Her first service under the government was in 1884, when she was part of an expedition under the command of Admiral Schley to go north and rescue the Greely expedition. They did. Afterwards she was turned over to our service. Since then each year she makes a cruise into the Arctic."

The vessel has been known for years by every white man, every Indian and Eskimo on the northern Alaska and Siberian coasts. She brings law and order to those distant regions; she helps out the schools; she takes care of the natives; she prevents violation of the laws and intimidation of the natives by disreputable whalers. She has rendered the most useful, valuable service to workers in great fields and engineers.

This is a happy wedding day, since it makes for constancy and right sort of domestic partnership.

There is a promising sign for the trying out of new plays and introduction of new stars. Women are subject to vibrations stimulating and inspiring urging them to ambitious effort.

Physicians probably will have much work to do at this time when there may be an epidemic affecting the digestive tract.

Many gives encouragement today to workers in great fields and engineers.

This is not an ambiguous rule under which to complete any negotiation which requires the signing of important papers.

All who write letters, especially political candidates should exercise extreme caution today. A scandal by which correspondence plays an important part is forecast.

The seers admonish the greatest conservatism in business. Merchants should be especially careful about buying, for the stars indicate that next month will be a time of watchful waiting in every way.

The total eclipse of the Moon tomorrow which will be visible in the Pacific Ocean, Australia, and parts of Europe and Africa, is read as presaging extreme changes in many things.

Greave Industrial unrest is forecasted for England and for parts of the United States.

Persons whose birthday it is should be most easy-going in the coming year, which may bring anxieties that can be banished by wise policies.

Children born on this day may be inclined toward rather reckless enterprises, but they are likely to be clever and very energetic. These subjects of eloquent judgment in business matters.

Wherever a stop is made, a ship's officer and the surgeon make a thorough inspection of the village and give aid to any one who may be ill. The surgeon performs minor operations aboard ship.

The economic and social conditions of the natives are carefully inquired into. If it has been a poor season for whaling and fur-trapping and food is appallingly scarce, the commander of the Bear makes arrangements to save the natives from starvation. Persons who are utterly destitute and unable to procure food are taken aboard and transported back to their home villages.

It is also the duty of the commander of the Bear to investigate complaints of law-breaking and to administer justice. In recent years, there has been a steady dwindling of crime in the Arctic regions, but in the past there were often stormy sessions on shore for the commander of the Bear, caught in such a storm, has been packed with ice on every side, narrowly escaping destruction. In view of the vessel's age, it has long been considered dangerous for it to take these chances.

"She is in service with a degree of risk to her personnel that the government should not further continue," Admiral Billard told congress last winter, "because if the vessel were caught in an ice field and went to pieces it might mean the loss of all on board."

Now that the crew did actually experience a narrow escape this summer, the last of the Bear's Arctic cruises has doubtless been made.

who are seeking neither special privilege nor class legislation.

The most important issue in the democratic campaign outside of Bryan as a presidential candidate is, "Where is Al Smith?"

Capper and Kansas

Arthur Capper, senator from Kansas, has won against the organized opposition of those who seemed to feel that the senator was not regular enough. Senator Capper was not of the bloc headed by Senator La Follette and did not vote with the insurgent crowd with Brookhart and the nonpartisan league and Farmer-Labor senators. He was opposed by the ultra conservatives in Kansas and by the followers of the nonpartisan league. But the people of the state have assured him by their vote in the primary that they have faith in him and are willing to abide by his action rather than to venture into some questionable position with untried opponents whose sole qualification for office was that they were against Capper. The Capper victory is a republican victory also and assures Mr. Coolidge support at the November election since the democratic vote was so small as to be indicative of lack of interest for the Davis ticket.

Out of the mire comes the scandal of the air service, the cantonment building, the spruce division, the munition factories, and others numerous and known during that war period. "And the conduct without scandal or corruption" becomes sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal in the light of facts and the investigations of that time.

There are high-sounding phrases in Mr. Davis' address. He walks in an atmosphere of altruism. He is going to support the budget started with Mr. Harding's administration and carried on by Mr. Coolidge. He is going to keep on the Coolidge program of economy. He is going to follow in Mr. Coolidge's footsteps and further reduce the income taxes. He is going to follow the Coolidge policy of aid for the farmer in a sound economic manner. He follows Mr. Coolidge in regard to railroads. Even in his severest denunciation of corruption Mr. Davis is weak beside the expressed utterances of President Coolidge in his New York speech on Lincoln's birthday. One would say that Mr. Davis had read that speech and the message to congress before writing his acceptance and had picked many of the best points made therein to present to the country.

The average citizen will inquire as to why it will be necessary to step from Mr. Coolidge, whom we know, to Mr. Davis, whom we do not, to carry on an honest government. The acceptance makes more certain that the policies of Mr. Coolidge are the policies appealing to those great in majority and the policies appealing to those great in minority are not by any means suppressed with respect to New York state, where Tom Spelacy, eastern manager, is to try the job of driving democracy into a militant force.

The demobilized have lost much valuable time in getting organized—that's one viewpoint freely expressed, though too often till the campaign has read and digested the speeches or acceptance of the leading candidates.

But whatever the politicians think, the people of Clarkburg, who are intensely proud of their fellow townsmen, would not be surprised if John W. Davis were elected. They think him a man of destiny. They will win him, no doubt, but fundamentally there is a strong number of "original Davis men" among them who tell you in detail about the McAdoo-Smith deadlock which would revive unpleasant memories of the psychological impetus they gave the Davis boom at the critical moment of its triumph.

It would be stretching the truth to say that an air of confidence prevails among the visitors here over the outcome of the election. The outlook is as far from a certainty as anything from a coin toss. The left-handedness upon which the campaign is based is a factor of undiminished importance. An ingrown opinion that one is inferior to the common man in one way or another and that notion has been more or less a factor in the psychology of the world with which the left hand is more skillful than the right.

About 4 per cent of all children are naturally left handed. Should they be interfered with? Is it right to interfere with? What grounds do teachers or parents have with a left handed child without so much as a word from parents or physician?

Prof. W. Franklin Jones of the department of education in the University of South Dakota invented a kind of gauge for the measurement of the "forearm plus," that is, the length of the forearm plus what forms the tip of the elbow, plus the length of the hand to the knuckle. This is found to be little greater for the left hand if the child is left handed. Prof. Jones said, about 10 years ago, "The moment we contemplate the effect of the offering speech, connection which is greatly dependent upon the arms, we find that left-handed children are more or less inhibited or handicapped than right-handed children."

It is an anatomical fact that the brain center which controls the movement of the hands and particularly the centers for fine, skillful movements of the fingers, are intimately related with the center for speech. These centers are on the left side of the cerebrum in right-handed persons. That is, centers in left brain control the right side of the body and speech. In left-handed persons the speech center is on the right side of the brain close to the centers which control movements of the left arm and hand.

Nature seems to intend that 36 per cent of us shall be right handed and 64 per cent left handed. Nature also gives a majority of us brownish hair, but a few are crowned with golden hair. Would it be justifiable for teachers to insist that golden-haired or red-haired pupils have their hair made brown? No, it is as justifiable as it is for teachers to interfere with left-handedness, and there are plenty of parents able enough to stand for that sort of thing.

Nobody knows whether stuttering is caused by forced transfer, but the stage manager sought out the star of the play in her dressing-room before the performance.

"My dear, I wish you would wear a different gown in the second act," he told her.

"But that is the latest style and I paid two hundred dollars for it," she remonstrated.

"That may be true, but when your husband sees it, he'll be angry," the star replied.

"I don't care if he is angry," she said.

"He is a good man, but he is not a good husband," the star said.

MISTRESS WILDING:

A ROMANCE, BY RAFAEL SABATINI.

(Author of "Scaramouche", "Capt'n Blood", "Fortune's Fool", etc.)
 "But I'm a woman," cried Fever.
 "How is she come into this galore?"

"It was she who warned him," said Richard.
 "Richard got out, "as already I have had the honour to inform you."
 "And your lordship cannot blame her for that," said Wilding. "The lady is a most loyal subject of King James; but still, as you observe, a dutiful wife. I will add that it was her intention to warn me only when too late for interference. Sir Rowland, as it happened, was slow in..."

"Silence!" barked the Frenchman. "Now that I know who you are, I can make a great difference. Where is Dr. Sharpe? Wentworth?"

"I hear them," answered the captain and from the street came the tramp of their marching feet.

"Richard turned again to Wilding. "He's offing as 'spose to me, between question and assertion, summing up the situation as he understood it. 'Tis the rogue," and he pointed to Richard, "ave betray your plan to 'sister, who betray 'er 'usband' who say's the Due de Mortem." "What's that?"

"Richard scarcely thought it worth while to add that she had heard of the plot, not only from her brother, but from Blake as well. After all, Blake's attitude in the matter of his action in bringing her to Wentworth for punishment, and to exculpate himself, suffice to cause any such statement of hers to be lightly received by the General.

She sat in an unassuming silence, her eyes wide, her face pale, and waited for the end of this strange business. In her heart she did perceive something that it would be difficult to ascribe a grain of men- less worthy of respectability. She was a stupid Blanche, foolish Wentworth, and timid Blake—and even Richard did not escape the unfavorable criticism. They were undergoing in her subconscious mind. Only Wilding detached in that assembly, he had exchanged in another that she was uninterested and stood out in sharp relief a new man, calm, intrepid, self-possessed, and if she was afraid, she was more afraid for him than for herself. This was something that, perhaps, she was secretly willing just then, that she was to realize it soon.

Wilding was speaking again, asking Blake a fresh question. "And who betrayed you to 'tis rogue?"

"To Wentworth?" cried Blake. "He was in the plot with me. He was left to guard the rear, to see that we were not taken by surprise, and he deserted the post. Had he not done that there had been no disaster, in spite of Mr. Wilding's intervention."

Wilding's brow was dark, his eyes gleaming as they rested on the traitor.

"I am rare," he asked him. "Not quite," said Mrs. Wilding. "Mr. Wentworth, I think, was well trained away. He did not intend 'tis."

"Take-toe," blazed Wilding, "old I interrogate you? It is for Mistral Wentworth to answer." He set a hand on the table and leaned forward toward Wilding, his face very nervous. "You will not answer for yourself, Mistral Wilding; I promise you you shall to answer for yourself." He turned again to Richard. "Ah, bien," he snapped. "Well you speak."

Richard came forward a step; he was extremely nervous, and certainly pale, but not as pale nor as nervous as from our knowledge of Richard we might have looked to see him at that moment.

"I am in a measure free," he said. "But what Mr. Wilding has said is mere talk. I was induced away, I did not do any harm, know of the place or the absence could cause this catastrophe."

"So you went, eh, vaillant? You thought that he to do your duty, eh? And it was you who told your sister?"

She may have told her, but not before Wilding had the tale already from Blake.

Wilding snorted and shivered. "Natural you will not speak true. A traitor I 'ave observe is always liar."

Richard drew himself up; he seemed invested almost with a new dignity. "Your lordship is pleased to accuse me a traitor?" he inquired.

"A durn' traitor," said the lordship, and at that moment the door opened, and a sergeant with a sword following him, stood at the salute upon the threshold. "A la bonne heure," his lordship hailed the sergeant, "you will arrest this rogue, this lady."—he waved his hand from Richard to Ruth.—"and you will take care to lock-up."

The sergeant advanced toward Richard, who drew a step away from him. Ruth rose to her feet in agitation. Mr. Wilding interposed himself between her and the guard, and laid upon his sword.

"My lord," he said, "do they teach no better courtesy, France?"

Wilding scowled at him, smiling darkly. "I shall talk wit' you soon, squire," said he, his words a riddle.

"But, my lord..." began Rich-

Found Strength by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Kankakee, Illinois.—"My mother-in-law always took your medicine for a cold, and then the change of life did her so much good that she induced me to take it for a weekness I had for a year and a half. It has strengthened me and now I have a nice baby boy. I all do my own housework now, and I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound whenever I have the opportunity. I am taking it again for weakness, as my family doctor has recommended it for this purpose."—Mrs. HARRY COULTON, 381 North Harrison Ave., Kankakee, Illinois.

Real Evidence of Merit

For the relief of female weakness, pains and backache, nervousness and irregularities with other troubles common to women, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a dependable medicine.

Its worth is thoroughly established by such letters as the above. There are women everywhere who having received benefit, gladly tell other women about it. For sale by drug-

TUBBY

YOUR BABY and MINE
By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

Mrs. Eldred is happy to advise all mothers on the care of their children of any age, in any subject which does not belong in the field of the doctor.

PRE-NATAL INFLUENCE

Jim's Mother: You are worrying yourself all for nothing. What sort of a world do you suppose this would be if a mother had the power to disfigure her child by the sight of her?—"I am not afraid of anything, or even fear of natural ones." Your common sense tells you that this is impossible, and that very few mothers live through a period of nine months without being frightened or disgusted by something.

The unborn child takes nutrition from the body of its mother. It inherits its disposition and its looks from a long line of ancestors on both sides. "We are not able to control one or the other." We are not able to control the body, and often when the body is being formed the cells range themselves not quite perfectly. The result may be a red spot, it may be lumps or mole or other "disfigurement" of the skin. The mother has nothing to do with this, and she is both powerless to bring it about and powerless to prevent it.

Some mothers have the idea that by an judicious study of language, music or painting during pregnancy she can instill such love in her child. I am sorry to disillusion her, but the child by inheritance comes to them, naturally, not if the mother is herself a lover of such things, and she has no chance to develop them, such an inheritance would be natural to the child, but to study them, with no love of them merely for the sake of the child, is useless.

Sorrow and disposition during that period is equally powerless to do harm. A nervous mother, by nature, may have a tendency to worry, and anything which distracts the mother will in turn distract the child's development. After all, it is much more fitting that we are unable to have anything more to do with the development of the child than that we are a poor sort of world if the influence of the mother would have the power to make a child for life. We are, and always have been, the product of not only our parents but our grandparents and great grandparents, on and on. The mother should aim to make herself a healthy, receptive and aid her continued health by a plied mind.

The little fat surfaced brown moles are easily removed by a good dermatologist through a process of implantation. A red mole should never be touched. There are a number of sizes of moles, but no matter what kind, it is best to bear with them until you have consulted a doctor who specializes in such work.

F. V. D.—New Reader—Never expect in trying to remove mole yourself—you can easily start a cancerous growth by so doing. The only safe way is to let them absolutely alone and consult a reliable skin specialist who can remove the blemish quickly and easily if it is not dangerous; or who will warn you in time for a cure if the growth should be cancerous.

TODAY'S MARKET

GRAIN

Chicago Review. Chicago grain market decided upward swing in price early today, influenced by strength of Liverpool quotations and by a bullish construction placed on the Canadian government's money market. Last night in London and cold weather in Argentina were also factors.

On the bulges in prices here, however, nothing was done except to lock volume. The opening, which ranged from 1 to 2 1/2 higher, with Sept. $1.275, 9/283, and Dec., $1.251 1/2, was followed by a moderate gain in initial top figures and then by a fresh upturn.

Subsequently, frost reports from Argentina and possibility of frost again there tended to add further gains and so did indications of liberal export quota. The close was firm, 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 higher, Sept. 1, $1.275, 9/283, and Dec., $1.251 1/2.

Cool temperatures tended to lift the corn market. After opening 1 1/2 higher, Dec., $1.041, prices continued to rise.

Percentages of continued cool weather and of showers were the source of a further advance later. The close was 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 higher, Dec., $1.047, 9/274.

Outs, like wheat, responded to bullish prospects of the Canadian crop report. Starting 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 higher, Sept. 1, $1.041, 9/274, and Dec., 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 higher near the opening.

Lower quotations on hogs weakened the provision market.

JUDGE OF COOKING HAS DIFFICULT JOB

All Entries Sampled by Culinary Expert in Selecting Winners.

By MRS. ARTHUR HELMS.

It was nearly as good as a domestic science course to witness the palatable judging done by Mrs. J. J. Vida of the cakes and pastries entered at the fair. She not only took a general survey of the appearance of the articles, but after tasting of the morsel of food, smelled of it, felt of its texture and broke it to see how it fell apart. If the article in question was a pie, she tasted of the crust and filling separately.

Those who watched her judging were amazed at the keenness of her judgment and her wide range of the differences in flavors. For instance, in the spice cake she showed that there was a marked difference in spice, spoiling the color and flavor. Another spice cake she said was ruined by the addition of Hickory nuts which predominated in flavor to the exclusion of the spices.

Cake Awards Made.

An apple food cake she thought should not be too sweet, but had a tendency to make the cake soggy and heavy. The texture she maintained must be smooth and velvety, and also as light as a feather, and perfectly baked so as not to be mushy when cut. There were 19 angel food cakes on display and, although there was very close competition, Mrs. S. J. Pohl, Clinton, first, and first prize and Agnes Cullen, second.

For fruit cake Mrs. Ethel Olsen had first and Mrs. A. S. Hutton, second. Mrs. Jennie Morton had first award on lemon filling cake and Mrs. Otto Wobitz, Clinton, second. Charlotte Clark, route 1, got first award on sunflower seed and nut food.

Mrs. E. H. Arnold, route 1, had first prize for sweet rolls and raised biscuits; Mrs. J. S. True for baking powder biscuits; Mrs. Alfred Olsen, parakeet house rolls; Mrs. Jennie Morton, grape muffins; and Mrs. R. H. Burmester, coffee cake.

Mrs. E. H. Arnold, route 1, had first prize for sweet rolls and raised biscuits; Mrs. J. S. True for baking powder biscuits; Mrs. Alfred Olsen, parakeet house rolls; Mrs. Jennie Morton, grape muffins; and Mrs. R. H. Burmester, coffee cake.

In the amateur cake competition, Mrs. Charles Hill got first prize and Mrs. Jennie Morton, second. In sponge cake, Mrs. Carrie Childs secured first prize and Ruth Clark, second. In the spice cake contest, Mrs. Charles Hill had first, and Frances Clark, second. Mrs. W. D. McFarlane had first on white cake; Mrs. E. H. Hill, first for chocolate cake; Mrs. Ethel Olsen, first for no corn meal; and Mrs. X. W. Poquette, first for orange cake.

Mrs. E. H. Arnold, route 1, had first prize for sweet rolls and raised biscuits; Mrs. J. S. True for baking powder biscuits; Mrs. Alfred Olsen, parakeet house rolls; Mrs. Jennie Morton, grape muffins; and Mrs. R. H. Burmester, coffee cake.

Other Culinary Winners

Mrs. J. O'Rourke received first award on plain white cake, and Mrs. Williams, South East street, first on apple sauce cake. Mrs. Martin Ballinger, Hungerford, first prize for a special cake, and Mrs. L. L. and Mrs. Charles Matthews had first on a prune cake, also not listed.

Mrs. J. C. Little received first on a jelly roll, and Miss Kittle Mooney, second; Mrs. W. F. Hill, first on light cup cake; and Mrs. Alfred Olsen, second.

On the dark cup cakes, Mrs. S. J. Pohl had first award and Mrs. J. H. Stevens, second. On plain doughnuts, Mrs. J. S. True had first and Mrs. A. H. Hazen, second. On raised doughnuts, Mrs. E. H. Arnold had first and Mrs. Elizabeth Kehoe, second. On sugar cookies, Frances Clark had first prize and Mrs. Carrie Childs, second. On Molasses cookies, Mrs. S. J. Pohl had first and Mrs. W. F. Hill, second. Mrs. Hill also got second on fruit cookies and second on ginger cookies. Ethel McArthur received first on fruit cookies and ginger and rocks. Mrs. Youngclaus had second on rocks. Mrs. E. H. Arnold, first on chocolate cake, and Mrs. J. H. Hunter, second. Mrs. Hunter won first on apple pie. Mrs. W. A. D. McFarlane was second. On entremet cookies, Mrs. J. Little had first prize and Isabel McFarlane, second.

In the lemon pie contest there was close competition and last a member of entries. Mrs. Carl Thom received first and Mrs. A. H. Hazen, second. In the mince pie class, Mrs. Alice Buchanan had first for a large, farmer size pie filled with delicious home-made filling and well baked; Mrs. Alfred Olsen, second. For cream pies, Mrs. S. H. Sutton had first and Mrs. Mrs. W. W. Wickham, second. In custard pie, Mrs. Buchanan had first and in custard, Mrs. W. F. Hill was first. In cranberry, Mrs. Carrie Childs had first and Mrs. Williams, second. In raisin pie, Mrs. Thinn had first and Ethel Olsen, second. In coconut nut pie, Mrs. Buchanan had first and in best pie, Mrs. J. H. Hunter, second. Mrs. Buchanan had first on pineapple pie and Mrs. Alfred Olsen, second on a caramel pie.

Chocolate Showings of Candy.

There was a very choice showing of candy, which had a special attraction for the young women judges, of which there were 16 entries, being of favorite chocolates. Mrs. J. J. Vida, O'Brien had first prize and Mrs. Fred L. James, second. Ethel McArthur got first award in butterscotch and in candy roll, on which Ethel Olsen got second. Mrs. Fred Jones had first on chocolate creams and Ethel McArthur, second. On glazed nuts, Ethel Olsen had first and Mrs. M. McFarlane, second. For peanut brittle, Mrs. Carrie Childs had first and Ethel Olsen, second. In pinochio, Mrs. Jones had first and Hazel Cannon, second. In stuffed dates, Miss McArthur had first. In walnut cookies, Mrs. Jones had first and Ethel Olsen, second. For an exhibit of home-made candy in a collection, Ethel McArthur got first prize and Ethel Olsen, second.

Floral Exhibit.

In the floral class the showing of outdoor flowers was very good, especially the carnations. In the professional classification, the Janesville floral company had a good number of these favorites, on which they got first prize. They included the auratum lilies, phlox, blue larkspur and shasta daisies. A basket of zinnias, a bouquet of pink roses, and a basket of petunias also received first awards.

The floral company had a good exhibit of potted plants and a vase of carnations on which they secured first prize.

In the amateur class, John Holt, Edgerton, got first for a bouquet of lilies, which was well displayed in a silver vase. Charles Bass received first for a bouquet of geraniums and for pink, Agnes Bayton, second; and on dahlias, and Mary Cunningham had first. Mrs. Fred L. James, Evansville, had first on zinnias, and Dorothy Holt, Edgerton, second. Miss McArthur got first prize for foliage plants and for hanging baskets and Mrs. B. J. Hayland, first for snapdragons. Mrs. J. H. Hunter, second, and first on amaryllis and second on roses. Alice Hilton had second on larkspur, and Mrs. Charles Roman, first on verbena. Mrs. George Miller had first on best begonia and on ferns, and Charles Bass, first on asparagus fern. The only design exhibited was a floral wreath by Grace Howard.

GERMANY TAXES HORSES.

Berlin—A horse tax is the latest in Germany and is imposed upon all except animals belonging to peasants.

Busy Man's Sport Page

BY FRANK SINCLAIR

GOLF and plenty of it has held southern Wisconsin these August days. This is the time for tournaments. The state amateur meet is now on at Kenosha. Club and interclub matches are being played everywhere. Courses are in the most remarkable shape of any season for this time of year. Both golfers and greenskeepers have put in a great amount of work that has prevailed, whereas August used to see them quite dry. An instance of the growing popularity of the game was discovered when some Janesville boys went to the Lake Ripley club at Cambridge, Minn., and found crowded. Numerous local golfers opened its sparsely new courses by putting in daily increasing popularity. Golf is fast becoming the game for the greatest majority of people and finds its greatest hold in the fact that it is competitive and combative.

WORD from Madison is to the effect that "Kid" Poe of Janesville was signed in good faith to appear on a boxing card there but that he and the promoters were surprised to hear from the sportsmen concerned that Poe is under ban. Poe's record is to be unable to fight in Wisconsin until Sept. 4. Poe can't get this chance, yet it seems queer that he didn't know he was under suspension. They want the "Kid" at the capitol city.

THE UNITED STATES is not the only place where the English are having trouble collecting their horses. From a story from London, England, that Tommy Gibbons has started legal proceedings to attach 2,000 pounds sterling alleged to be due him for the fight last Saturday in which he beat Arnold Bloomfield in the third round. Gibbons has already received 3,000 pounds. The Yale contestants to say that the preliminary fighters are also taking action to get the money due them.

Arnold Simons, Louisville, Ky., won boys' tennis title of south, defeating Ken Boland, New Orleans.

Lillian Harrison, 26, from Argentina, attempting swim of the English channel, injured leg on rock and gave up after several hours.

Ethel Luckie, member U. S. Olympic team, beats Miss Marlene Weisheit, Hawaii, in 100-yard free-style swim for national title.

HeLEN WILLS and Mrs. Julia Bixby, San Francisco, win matches in national tennis meet at Forest Hills, N. Y.

Sparke by San Francisco wins 2:00 pace at Cleveland.

An American league baseball committee has in turn, on Johnson's insistence, postponed indefinitely the national baseball association for their baseball sustenance.

The younger circuit clubs spent the day traveling to the cities where the western teams will open their third division of the east—Pittsburgh's double victory over Philadelphia furnished what little thrill in the sympathetic National flag chase is capable of arousing.—This fed out from the Glum's lead over the Pirates from seven games and a half to seven.

McGraw of the Phillies and Upton of the Red Sox entered the first Pittsburgh-Philadelphian battle with a flat fight over the writer's decision of Glanzer's pitching—Gurley, Hart, playing the role of rope-maker, required a bruised cheek for his trouble.—Carey's two homers were a secondary feature of the opener.—The record is 7-4 and 6-4. In defeating Cincinnati 4-2, New York, broke Carl Mays' winning streak, nine straight.—Behind stellar pitching by Kaufmann, Chicago, downed Boston 3-2.—The Cubs lived up to their reputation for speed by pulling out a 10-inning triumph in the second tuning.—Fourteen of the Brooklyn team's record in their series with St. Louis and a result of their 24 triumph.—The Robins closed their home stand against the western clubs with 11 victories out of 10 starts.

Jockey Sande, who fell and broke leg last week, improves rapidly.

-Then Up Jumped the Go-getter

All was serene as Main Street slept. Dizzily-hot, the sun shone down upon a sluggish thoroughfare. Not a breeze stirred the lowered awnings. It was HOT!

—Then up jumped Go-getter!

Standing head and shoulders above his "sit-tighter" competitors he made a new bid for business.

Sez he—"This is the weather that we were wishing for last winter. Now that it is here—I am going to make use of it."

—And he called his clerks together and gave them a "pep" talk that put them on their mettle. He bade them forget the heat and talk the "coolness" of his merchandise to his customers. He showed them how to sell Mrs. Brown a light summer dress on the merits of its comfort instead of its color and pattern.

—And he had all the electric fans oiled and in running order so that his customers would be comfortable and his clerks smilingly attentive.

—And he made certain that there was cool, sparkling water to drink at easily accessible places for the self-same reason.

—And he wrote his newspaper advertisements with coolness as the theme. He made careful survey of hot weather merchandise and listed each item with descriptions and prices in each ad. He talked coolness persistently and every day.

In other words he believed that "When in Rome, do as the Romans do."

Or inversely—when it's hot, act cool.

Did he cash in on hot weather?

Boy, that's the only thing he let get hot—the handle on the cash register.

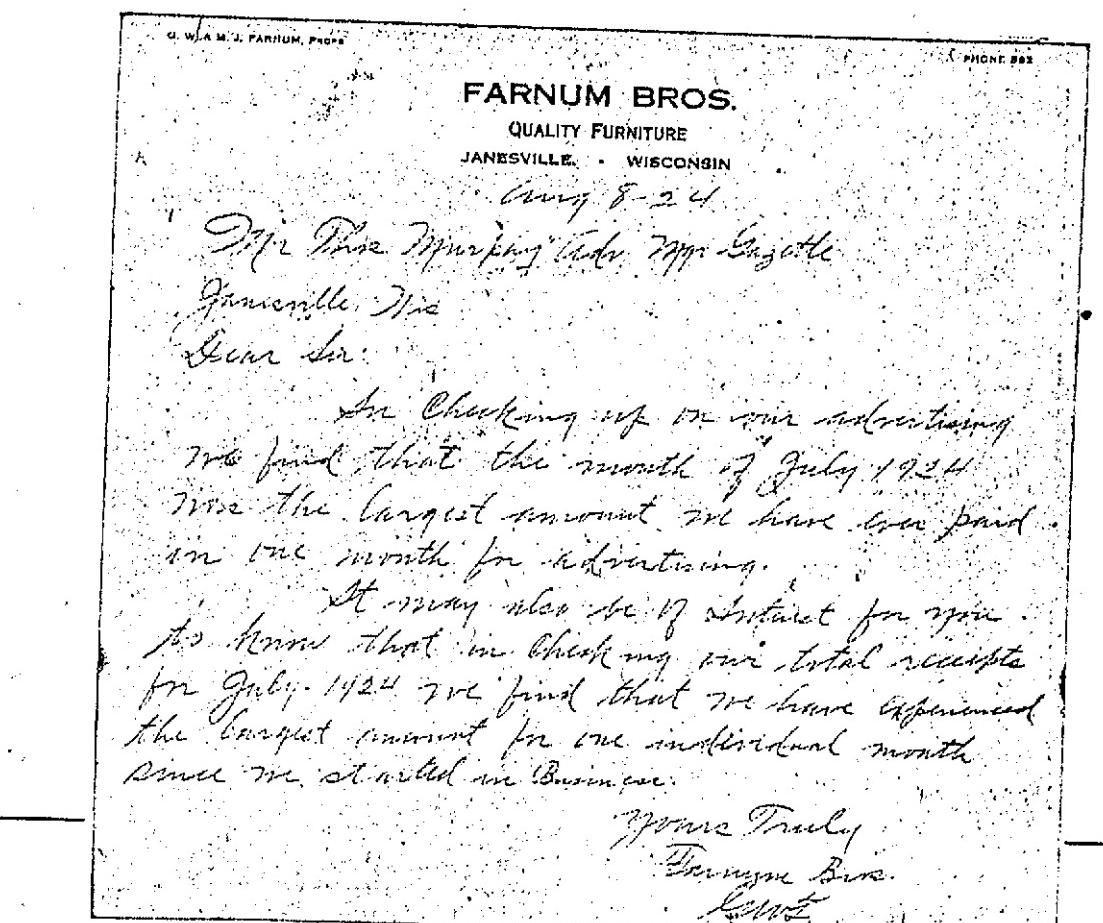

The Go-getter has proved that there is business during dog-days, cold weather, rainy weather, Presidential campaigns, or any other time—if you go after it. His Dollar Day campaign is already planned and he is sure of the biggest day's selling of the year. He KNOWS that he is going to do a profitable Fall business because his buying, his store and window displays, even every advertisement has been carefully thought out and planned.

There IS business for the go-getter.

If YOU want to join the Go-getter class—the Gazette is willing to help. Its service department will help you plan, write and illustrate complete advertising programs that sell more goods.
